

Emily Hunt is from Clendenin, West Virginia and was a member of the Roane County FFA Chapter. Her advisors were Mr. Ben Hays and Mr. Danny Cummings. Emily joined FFA as a freshman in high school where she immediately found her passion for the association and all things agricultural.

Emily served as both Secretary and President for the Roane County FFA Chapter. While in high school, she enjoyed competing in various FFA competitions. Some of her favorite competitions included Agronomy and Land Judging, both of which she and her teams advanced to compete in at the National Competitions. Emily has several SAE programs including, beef cattle production, show cattle, market hogs, and her favorite, vegetable production. Outside of FFA, Emily is heavily involved in 4-H and her church's youth group. Throughout high school she was involved in the National Honors Society, S.T.A.R.S, varsity basketball, and served as a student mentor. Emily is a freshman at West Virginia University where she is studying Animal and Nutritional Science with the hopes of attending veterinary school one day. As the 2017-2018 Central Region Vice-President, she hopes to share her passion for agriculture while helping others find their passions in FFA and life.
